Part I Writing

We can see that there is a mother and her daughter in the picture above. The mother is reading newspaper on the sofa while the girl says that she has already accepted by the college her mother chose for her. This cartoon aims to illustrate that parents have too much control in their children's growth.

In this highly competitive society, most parents are eager to see their children's success. As a result, many of them make arrangements and decisions based on their own experience and preferences instead of their kids'. However, this might lead to severe consequences. First of all, it is easy for children to develop a habit of over-depending on their parents rather than to be independent. What is more, the young generation may probably have no interest or passion in the path their parents choose, which should do harm to their own development.

As far as I am concerned, we should keep it in mind that parents ought to give reasonable advice when it is necessary. Also, children should have their own idea and communicate with their parents about their future.

Part IV Translation

China is one of the most ancient civilizations across the world. Many elements underlying the modern world originate from China. Nowadays, China, experiencing a new industry revolution, boasts the most rapidly developing economy in the world. China also launched an ambitious plan to explore the space, including establishing a space station before 2020. Currently, China is one of the largest exporters throughout the world, attracting abundant foreign investment. In the meanwhile, it also invests billions of dollars overseas. In 2011, China surpassed Japan, becoming the second largest economy in the world.
