passage 1:

(沈阳学校厉莘老师)

What makes a person famous? This is a mystery that many people have carefully thought about. All kinds of myths surround the lives of well-known people. Most people are familiar with the works of William Shakespear, one of the greatest English writers of the 16th and 17th centuries. Yet, how many know Shakespear,the person,the man behind the works? After centuries of research, scholars are still trying to discover Shakespear's personal histroy. It is not easily found in his writings. Authers of the time could not protect their works. An acting company, for example, could change a play if they wanted to. Nowadays, writers have copyrights to protect their work. Many myths arose about Shakespear. Some said he had no formal education, others believed that he began his career by tending the horses of wealthy men. All of these myths are interesting, but are they true? Probably not. Shakespear's father was a respected man in Stratford upon Avon, a member of the town council. He sent young William to grammar school. Most people of Elizabethan times did not continue beyond grammar school. So Shakespear did have at least an average education. Some parts of Shakespear's life will always remain unknown. The Great London Fire of 1666 burnt many important documents that could have been a source of clues. We will always be let with many questions and few facts.

Q16: What does the speaker say about William Shakespear?

Q17: What do we learn about Shakespear's father?

Q18: Why does the speaker say part of Shakespear's life will remain a mystery?

Why would animal kill itself? It seems a stange question and yet it is one has puzzled some people for a long time. The lemming is one such animal. Lemmings periodically commit mass suicide and no one knows just why. The small creatures which inhabit the Scandinavia mountains sustain themselves on a diet of roots and live in nests they make underground. When their food supply is effeciently large, the lemmings live a normal undisturbed life. However, when the lemmings food supply becomes too low to support the population, a similar migration commences. The lemmings leave the nests altogether at the same time for a huge crowds. Great numbers of the lemmings begin a long and hard journey arcosss the Scandinavian plains. The journey that may last weeks. The lemmings eat everything in their path continuing their destructive march until they reach the sea. The reason for what follow has remained a mystry for zoologists and naturalist. The time reaching the coasts, the lemmings do not stop, but swim by the thousand into the surf. Most flit on water only a short time before they tire, sink, and drown. A common theory for this unusual phenomenon is that the lemmings do not realize that the ocean is such a huge body of water. In their cross-country journey, the animals must traverse many smaller bodies of water such as rivers and small lakes. They may assume that the sea is just another such swimmable obstacle. But no final answer has been found to the mystry.
