Every kid may do some silly things. Maybe we think it's a great thing at that time. The story happened when I was four. One day, I was playing outside our house when I saw my grandfather's truck. It was black and looked very old. I thought, "Grandpa doesn't have to drive such an ugly truck. Maybe I can make it look better." I got some paint and a brush which were left in the kitchen by my father. I painted the truck white and blue all over. I started my great work at 8:30. I was finishing the job at 11:30 when my mum walked up and stopped me. She was worried that my grandfather would be angry. However, when my grandfather looked at my paintings on the truck, he laughed loudly. He thought that was the most beautiful truck he had ever seen.

Sometimes, adults don't stop to see things through children's eyes. They miss so much beauty in the world. Luckily, my grandfather saw things in another way.

Friendship Day is a great day for celebrating friendship. It was firstly started in 1935 by the US. Now it falls on the first Sunday of August every year. The celebration doesn't only happen in the US, people in other countries are interested in it, too.

The idea of spending the day with friends was spread around the world. With more and more countries joining in the celebrations, Friendship Day soon became an international festival.

Between 1936 and 1997, Friendship Day didn't have a symbol, like Santa Claus for Christmas. However, in 1997, the United Nations named Winnie the Pooh as the world's Ambassador of Friendship.

The traditional celebrations include activities such as meeting with friends and exchanging cards, flowers and gifts. Some people may have parties together with their friends. Others may go out for entertainment on this special day. These are popular among all age groups from teenagers to old people.

Although Friendship Day and its celebrations may have changed over the years, the basic idea behind the festival remains the same. People simply enjoy the moment they spend together with their friends and express love and care for their friends.
