参考范文:

Various translation apps abound and hit now. Translation software and application were originally a learning tool, but it has even become more a productivity tool now. With China's strong Internet development capabilities, you can find so many translation software in the app store.

There are many reasons for this popularity, and I hereby list one that I think is the most important. Since the 2008 Olympic Games, China's international image has risen, and with the shift of the economic center of gravity to China in recent years, increasing number of Chinese and foreigners have the increasing need to remove language barriers. So the translation market has huge potential benefits.

Of course, the problems are always endless and close behind. For example, China has a vast territory, and each region has its dialect, of which the unfamiliar meaning brings huge difficulty to machine translation. Wrong translations will make jokes, create misunderstandings, and even reduce mutual favor.

In my opinion, we need to understand each other's cultural customs, and learn a little bit of language knowledge, rather than rely on the application. Besides, software vendors can also use artificial intelligence or better algorithms to optimize translation problems. I sincerely hope China will shine in the process of globalization.
